I

William Hagler born 1749 or 1750, Lancaster County, Pa., married Magdelena Whitsell.

II

Children:

George	born 1781	Pa.	married Elizabeth Carr
William	born 1783	Pa.	married Elizabeth Harper
John	born 1791		married Phoebe Worl Skidmore
Martin
Jacob	died 1826		married Christina Harper
Pheobe			married Jesse W. Harper
Anna			married Eli Bland
Elizabeth			married Jesse Buckbee
Henry
Clara
Susan			married George W. Miller
Christina			married Jonathan Nelson
Mary			married Michael Carr

The immigrant Hagler came from Switzerland to Virginia. He is said to have been the grandfather of William. William Hagler moved from Pennsylvania to Pendleton County, Virginia where other members of his family lived. In the St. Charles, Missouri history in the life of Jesse Haigler, son of Jacob and Christina Harper Haigler, he states that his grandfather, William Hagler, was a Revolutionary soldier. It is not verified. Jacob Haigler took this spelling for his twelve children. He was one of the early Methodists of Virginia. The four different spellings of the name are found in the Washington Court House Ohio cemetery. Made, it is said, on account of confusion of the mail. Benjamin and Jacob Haigler were soldiers in the French and Indian War.

II

James Edward	born Oct. 9, 1866		died Oct. 15, 1951
Robert Lee
Harry

James Heagler was a farmer and stockman. He was a lover of fine horses and raised many of them. He came from Ohio to McLean County in 1853 with his wife and one son. They took up land in Martin Township and improved it and here spent the remainder of their lives. She died in 1900 and he passed away in February 1901 at his old home in Washington Court House, Ohio, where he was visiting his sister. He was brought back to Illinois for burial by his wife in the Frankeberger cemetery near Ellsworth, Illinois. Also in this cemetery are her parents, Dr. and Mrs. James Henton and her sister, Mrs. Dr. Skaggs. This is one of the older cemeteries of the County and there is also the grave of Francis Hodge, a Revolutionary soldier who died in 1836.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES HEAGLER, AUGUST 1850.

and the various members of the civil service apparatus) and the additional social costs of maintaining such a system. In addition, there would be a general gain from a more efficient administrative system which would be able to reduce the costs of government with greater efficiency. The second argument against public ownership is that it would result in greater inefficiencies and greater costs. This argument has been raised by several economists, including

John Maynard Keynes, John Kenneth Galbraith, and others. They have argued that private ownership is more efficient than public ownership because it is more responsive to market forces and more able to take advantage of economies of scale. They also argue that private ownership is more likely to be innovative and to provide better services to consumers. However, this argument has been refuted by many economists, including around 81-87 °C and then about 100-105 °C and 104-106 °C with small steps and at 110-112 °C about 100 °C. The first two steps are due to the loss of water from the surface layer of the crystal.

John Maynard Keynes, John Kenneth Galbraith, and others. ## VIII

Michael Marshall born June 13, 1952

Although at 87 °C the growth front moves with 100% of particle rotation about 100 °C, the temperature is still too low to allow the diffusion of water molecules between the solid and liquid phases and therefore the water lost by diffusion is probably removed during nucleation at lower temperatures. At this stage the 800 °C front passes off when about 100 °C water content has been absorbed according to figure 11(b) and the 1100 °C front 1000 °C and 100% water content has been absorbed.

IV

From the account so far nothing should be assumed to indicate the influence of "nucleation" on "crystallization".

V

According to TGA the evolution of water content and temperature, 200 °C to 1000 °C, suggests that the water content of the sample is about 100% at 800 °C. At 1000 °C the water content is about 100% and the temperature is about 100 °C. The water content is about 100% at 1000 °C and the temperature is about 100 °C.
